++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
A hot and sunny Sunday with rain early Monday morning.

Today:
Largely sunny and very warm, locally hot, with temperatures higher than the last couple of days. Winds will be fairly calm for most, as well. Maximum temperature 26 deg C (79 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloud building up from the northwest in the early evening ahead of a band of rain, occasionally heavy, moving south in the early hours of the morning. A warm night. Minimum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Monday:
The cloud from tonight lingering through most of the morning, with the rain easing. By afternoon, likely turning largely dry and clear. Still warm, though not as warm as Sunday. Maximum temperature 19 deg C (66 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Largely fine and dry on Tuesday. Wednesday and Thursday are looking mostly dry but cloudier with a little rain. Temperatures nearer to normal than recent days.
